WORLD CONSTRUCTION FORUM 2019 IN LJUBLJANA WAS A SUCCESS

Last week engineers from all over the world gathered in Ljubljana for the World Construction Forum 2019, which was held under the title «Buildings and Infrastructure Resilience». After two days of interesting lectures and acceptance of Ljubljana declaration forum concluded with a Gala Dinner, where Slovenian Chamber of Engineers presented awards for innovation on the field of construction. Overall, the WCF 2019 was a resounding success!

WCF 2019 IN NUMBERS
In two days, 700 participants from 51 countries from five continents visited World Construction Forum, attending 109 lectures and listening to four keynote lectures at the forum opening, given by prof. Peter Fajfar from Slovenia, prof. Antonia Moropoulou from Greece, prof. Jinxiu Yan from China and dr. Mark Coleman from Great Britain.

e-WCF - DIGITAL VIDEO LECTURES AVAILABLE FOR PUBLIC
We have enabled the legacy of WCF 2019 to live on on the internet. All the lectures will be available for free on forum’s website (https://www.wcf2019.org/forum-lectures/) from 22nd April 2019. Some of them are already uploaded (forum opening, key-note speakers). Live videos and abstracts of the lectures can be found on the website. We would like to reach as many people around the globe as possible, so we kindly ask you, to share the information about the e-lectures with your respected colleagues and help the voice of WCF 2019 to spread around.

LJUBLJANA DECLARATION 2019 ON THE CONSTRUCTION UNTIL 2030

The final act of WCF 2019 was the Ljubljana declaration, which was prepared with the goal of contributing to the UNESCO’s Sustainable Development Goals Agenda 2030. All the shareholders contributed with the drafting process of declaration and we are confident that it will help with achieving a goal for sustainable and green development of the world. You can find the Ljubljana declaration here: https://www.wcf2019.org/2019-ljubljana-declaration-on-buildings-and-infrastructure-resilience/
